

Make your marketing budget go further.

Let us streamline your production of printed matter!

Strokirk-Landströms is now focusing on making things even simpler for you as an orderer of printed matter. We are investing in a fully automated production workflow (JDF), and are extending this personal service to you. The aim of all this is to make the best use of your time, to secure lead times and to help you control your investment in 'printed communication'.

A fully automated workflow in the production of printed matter means:

- You gain time and increased accessibility
Via our web-based solution Webbkorr you can get an update on your project, and examine and approve documents anywhere and anytime.
- Increased security and capacity
The system gives the alert in the event of faults in your digital documents or other discrepancies, regardless of the number of languages, volumes and variant readings, 24 hours a day.
- Quality assurance and control
Your project will be filed in our JDF-based business system. From the moment your order arrives until the printed matter is delivered, your project will be documented and regulated via automated functions. You have access to information on your project at all times and from all places.

This is why we have...

- Invested in a new business system linked to our production unit
- Installed Webbkorr (an online service over the Internet)
- New printing presses
- A brand new bookbinding shop
